

An opportunity to spice up your business as networking in Leeds hots up!

Business networking club Networking In The City (NITC) is launching it's famous Curry Club in Leeds this April. Networking In The City's Curry Club events, held at stylish city centre Indian restaurants around the country, are firm favourites with key influencers from blue chip companies and growing businesses from the construction, finance and property sectors.

With firmly established events already in Manchester, Liverpool, Edinburgh, Sheffield and Cheshire amongst others, Leeds is the latest city in the UK to benefit from this exciting networking opportunity.

NITC director Steve Kettle built the firm foundations of the curry club in the North West and is determined to bring this unique style of networking event to at least 10 new cities this year. Leeds Curry Club which launches at Aagrah Restaurant, St Peter's Square, Leeds on 6th April is sponsored by city law firm Ford & Warren Solicitors. Steve says:

“NITC Curry Club events offer a great format that is appealing to sponsors such as Ford & Warren Solicitors as they offer a relaxed networking format and attract a high calibre of members. Our events attract key speakers from throughout the construction, finance and property sectors allowing our members to discuss key topics and issues whilst socialising and having a good time.

Leeds Curry Club offers the ideal mix of business and pleasure. Our aim is to bring key decision makers and influencers together with local businesses to raise awareness of opportunities, encourage discussion and help keep business thriving.”

NITC are currently taking bookings for the first Leeds Curry Club which takes place over lunchtime on Wednesday 6th April. Subsequent events will take place on the first Wednesday of every month. To book a place at the event visit: www.networkinginthecity.co.uk or call 0161 613 9183.
